

Changing Seasons

There's a gentle wind

I see pink and green

Flowers are blooming

They're alive, the trees

Short sleeves and tennis shoes

Never too early for sweets

The dairy store is opening

Maybe I'll buy some treats

Ice cream and swimming pools

A hot and humid day

Wishing for something cool

To melt my worries away

Tank tops and flip flops

Turn the AC up, turn it up all the way

The sun is screaming "It's time!"

But just you wait, for autumn is only in a few days

Orange, yellow and red

The trees are lonely and cold

A million thoughts in my head

Breathing hard, I wait for what lies ahead

Long sleeves, pants, perhaps a scarf for you

Take a trip down to the pumpkin patch

Get some apple cider, a donut or two

Make chicken noodle soup, a whole batch

The school break has begun

We can wrap up in blankets and have hot cocoa

Or have a snowball fight, if you're itching for fun

Shovel the driveway, it's covered in snow

Have family over for a nice night

Go caroling, or look at the reindeer

Buy a snowglobe, buy some gifts

Wishing everyone a happy New Year!

We've had flowers, sun, leaves and snow.

Hope you had a good time, now it's time to go!
